Why DriftWood?

There are a lot of companies large and small that build aquarium stands and canopies. Unfortunately, there are very few that actually understand what it takes to design and build a piece of furniture that is both convenient and user friendly for the Aquarist.

Many of our employees and both of our designers have maintained both fresh and salt water aquariums. We have designed our pieces to be the easiest and most functional to use.

If you look at what else is out there you will find 6' and larger stands with only two doors which, makes getting into the sump and other equipment a real issue. You will find canopies with small doors on top, that require you to take off the canopy in order to do maintenance.

As aquarium keepers we understand what makes for the most user friendly, and the easiest access options. As a result, we design and build as we would want for ease of use.

You will notice wide open spaces under the stand for the ability to use the largest sump possible. As well as the most access to your equipment. The canopies are designed with a full flip up, full access fronts to give you room to do maintenance without removing the canopy.

Material incorporated into the stands and canopies are of the upmost quality. The side panels are fabricated out of the finest Gold Ply's where ever possible. Most doors and panels are out of solid wood. As are all the moldings. The deck and top of the stands are the highest quality melamine, banded for water protection. The finishes used are catalyzed conversion varnishes for the best protection of damage from chemicals used in modern day aquarium keeping.

All larger stands are constructed with an internal frame. Designed to not only support the weight and keep it square, but to give you peace of mind, should you have a leak.

We do not use nominal lumber for these frames. Nominal lumber can warp and twist over time risking blowing out a panel on your tank. We use a marine ply, engineered structural panel for the framing on the stand. This makes for a much stronger frame without the issues of nominal lumber.

We have been shipping nationally for over 8 years. Give your LFS the opportunity to quote you the furniture of your dreams. Afterall, why would you invest a ton of money on glass, equipment, corals, and fish to have it sitting in something that looks like it came from a big box store and may not be safe?

We appreciate you reviewing this information. When you want the best for your "Wet Pets", DriftWood is here.
